Our reading scores haven't changed, despite heavily investing in technology.

My struggling readers are unmotivated and avoid reading whenever possible.

Many of our students are not reading at grade level, despite all the efforts we've made.

“All students have raised their guided and independent fluency scores significantly in eight months. I highly recommend this program because it combines visual drills as well as fluency and vocabulary development as students demonstrate their comprehension of complex passages by responding to prompts that correlate with our state standards.”

The Reading Plus Difference

Research shows that 70% of non-proficient readers and 30% of proficient readers process text inefficiently. Inefficient reading is the hidden hurdle that prevents the development of fluency, comprehension, and motivation.

Inefficient readers struggle to move their eyes smoothly and comfortably over lines of texts at an appropriate rate. These students are often assessed for gaps in foundational skills and comprehension, when the actual hurdle is reading inefficiency. As a result, these readers often receive instruction and practice for the wrong issue and continue to struggle.

Built on decades of research, Reading Plus assesses efficiency, and also measures and increases motivation and comprehension. The program allows students to practice at their own pace and uses adaptive technology in a truly meaningful way.

“Efficiency goes hand in glove with motivation and comprehension. Readers need all three to be able to learn new ideas from books they read. Think of it as a combination of skill, will, and thrill. Efficiency provides the skill, motivation engenders the will, and comprehension leads to the thrill of acquiring new ideas.”
